This chapter examines the political economy of regionalism, focusing on why regional trade agreements are established and which actors are likely to support regional rather than global trade liberalization. It also considers the effects that regionalism has had on the trade and welfare of members and non-members, as well as the relationship between liberalization at the regional and global levels.

6. Regional Trade Agreements - Politics Trove

This chapter focuses on the political economy of the environment and environmental change. The growth of the world economy is transforming the earth's environment. However, there are sharp disagreements over the nature of this transformation; for example, whether the globalization of capitalism is a force of progress and environmental solutions, or whether it is a cause of our current global ...
